

Any party to a child welfare case or the party's attorney may ask the court in writing to compel the physical presence of a witness or party at a proceeding in the case, including by (1) completing this form, (2) filing the completed form with the court, and (3) serving a copy of the completed form on all other parties in any manner authorized by law that is reasonably calculated to ensure they all receive it no later than two court days before the proceeding.

The court must require a witness to be physically present if it determines that one or more parties have not given, or have withdrawn, consent to the witness's remote appearance. The court may require a witness or a party to be physically present if it finds that the available technology is inadequate to allow the effective management or resolution of the proceeding, that an in-person appearance will materially assist in the determination of the proceeding or the effective management or resolution of the case, or that the confidentiality of the proceeding cannot be preserved using available remote technology.

- I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians that the foregoing is true and correct.
